

Over Million and Half Work Relief Program Re- commended in Lee County

Included in Inventory Furnished Govern- ment by State

Associated Press advices from Springfield this morning said the state today took inventory of its public works possibilities and announced that Illinois could use $1,780,000,000 of the $4,880,000,000 work relief appropriation which President Roosevelt has placed before congress.

Governor Horner sent to the Natural Resources Board, headed by Secretary Ickes, a detailed list of recommendations for the expenditure in Illinois of $480,000,000 within 18 months and for an additional $1,300,000,000 within four years.

Over $1,512,000 in Lee County recommended for Lee county are: Dixon State Hospital, $1,225,000; armory project for Co. A, 129th Infantry, I. N. G.; buildings and recreation in Dixon, 29,700; Amboy, recreation, 12,000; Ashton, sewer system, 30,000; Compton, water system, 30,000, sewer system, 15,000; pavement and bridges, 11,000; Franklin Grove, sewer system, 50,000, pavements and bridges, 6,400; Lee Center, buildings, 12,000; Paw Paw, sewer system, 20,000, buildings, 5,800.

Ogle County—White Pines state park, $15,000; Forreston, sewer system, 20,000; Oregon, sewer system, 155,000, buildings, 100,000; Rochelle, water system, 1,000, sewer system, 71,000, pavements and bridges, 12,000; Stillman Valley, water system, 12,000, sewer system, 15,000.

Bureau County—LaMoille, water system, 2,000, sewer system, 15,000, streams and drainage, 1,000; Maitland, pavements and bridges, 13,000; Ohio, water system, 30,000, sewer system, 15,000; Princeton, buildings, 100,000, airport, 75,000; Springfield, water system, 25,000, sewer system, 120,000, pavements and bridges, 52,000, buildings, 50,000, recreation, 50,000.

Whiteside County—Sterling, streams and drainage, 10,000; Fulton, pavements and bridges, 15,000, electric, 25,000; Morrison, water system, 29,000, sewer system, 12,000, recreation, 15,000; Rock Falls, sewer system, 150,000, pavements and bridges, 11,000, buildings, 22,000.

"We have in mind more than the idea that public works may be the only real solution of the unemployment problem," Horner announced.

"If President Roosevelt's public works plan is approved by congress, Illinois should be among the first to share in it because of the list of worthy, needed and useful public works projects we are submitting."

The state planning commission cooperated with federal, state and local agencies in drafting the immediate 18-months and the long term four-year programs.

Four Classifications
The governor's recommendations were for four classes of public works:

Federal projects—Dredging, flood control, levees, damhydro-electric plants, channel and harbor improvement, docks, post offices, buildings, weather stations and biological survey, calling for $55,233,000 immediately and $141,411,000 on a long-term basis.

State-wide projects—Railroad grade separations, bridges at Shawneetown, Cairo and East St. Louis, a $10,000,000 medical center at Chicago, Urbana housing survey, land, underground water and state planning surveys and a tentative historic museum of sculpture—$44,281,000 immediately and $162,681,000 long-term.

State government—Buildings at the state fair grounds, normal schools, welfare institutions, national guard armories, mine rescue stations and the University of Illinois; improvement of state parks, construction of an Abraham Lincoln Highway from Vincennes to Beardstown and waterway improvements—$124,725,000 immediate and $187,225,000 long-term.

Local governments—In some 600 communities in every county, projects for sewer, water and electric light systems, buildings, pavement and bridges, airports and recreation—$180,050,000 immediate and $518,249,014 long-term.

There were other recommendations for completion of PWA projects, housing allocations and other projects.

OHIO GOVERNOR FACING OUSTER, FIGHTS HOPKINS

Major Scandal Over the Democratic Administra- tion of Relief Pends

Columbus, O., March 18.—(AP)—Governor Martin L. Davey, facing possible impeachment because of charges by federal relief administrator Harry L. Hopkins that he had "incontrovertible evidence" of political corruption in the administration of relief in Ohio, filed a warrant charging criminal libel against Hopkins today.

The startling developments came two days after President Roosevelt directed Hopkins to "assume entire control" of the administration of federal government's $3,000,000 a month relief bill in Ohio.

"Come to Ohio if you dare and show that you are a man or turn and run like a coward and confess your contemptible character," Davey said in concluding a 700-word telegram to Hopkins.

The governor said the warrant was sworn out in the municipal court at Newark, O.

In his telegram Davey said:

Challenging Message

"I realize that you cannot be extradited for this offense, but I challenge you to come to Ohio, submit to arrest, and try this case in open court. If you fail or refuse to do so, you will be guilty of the lowest form of cowardice by hitting below the belt and running. You have done me a grave and unforgivable wrong and if you have any of the instincts of manhood you will permit this wrong to be righted."

"Please remember that I am still in business and that my reputation for integrity before the American people is priceless. In connection with this business from which my living is made, you insinuated some wrongful acts on the part of someone connected with the Democratic state committee of Ohio. You did not name the person or persons, nor do you disclose what the alleged acts were. If you have evidence of wrongdoing against anyone connected with the Democratic committee of the Ohio relief set-up you will be guilty of inexcusable culpability if you fail to prosecute to the limit."

Denies Connection
"What right have you to connect my name with these alleged wrongs which you have done by inference when your own letters show that I had no connection with these unnamed ones?"

Hopkins today dispatched to Attorney General John W. Bricker what he called "incontrovertible evidence" that business firms seeking relief contracts were "shaken-down" for $8,000 by Davey's campaign committee.

As the scandal developed to proportions which may split the state Democratic leadership, Charles C. Stillman took over control of the Ohio relief organization by order of President Roosevelt and indicated the "entire story" of a federal Prominent Henry Co.

Republican is Dead

Cambridge, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Funeral services for Theodore Boltenstern, Republican political leader and former president of the Illinois state fair, will be held here tomorrow afternoon. Boltenstern, who was 76, died yesterday after a paralytic stroke.

He was for 25 years president of the central Illinois trotting and racing association, an office he held at his death. He was postmaster of Cambridge for five years and at times served as a member of the Republican state central committee and of the 15th congressional district committee.

He headed the state fair during Len Small's administration.

Fr. Coughlin Promises to Cease
Broadcasting if Proven Wrong

Detroit, March 18.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin challenged critical newspapers of the nation Sunday to remove him "from public life by proving the unsoundness of nationalizing the federal reserve banking system."

Father Coughlin said: "I solemnly contract with every critic in the newspaper world definitely to cease broadcasting if the proposition can be proven unsound."

"You cannot deceive the people by slinging slurs at persons and dogging principles," he said. "It is impossible for the press to re-

-NO DISCRIMINATION-

Ottawa, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—John Hauff, Chicago gunman who pleaded guilty to the murder of J. Charles Bundy, cashier of the Leonore, Ill., state bank following an attempted holdup last January, today was sentenced to death by Judge Robert E. Larkin.

Hauff's two companions, Fred Gerner and Arthur Thielens of Rockford, Ill., who elected to plead not guilty and were convicted by a jury in Judge Larkin's court, already were under death sentences for the murder of Bundy.

Judge Larkin set April 11 for the execution of all three. The men will be taken to the penitentiary late today by Sheriff Ralph H. Desper.

HOUSE VOTE ON BONUS TO COME BEFORE WEEKEND

Its Approval of Payment Conceded: Method of Paying Uncertain

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—The question whether the $2,000,000,000 soldiers' bonus should be paid immediately is to be brought before the house tomorrow. It is generally agreed that the house, by a huge majority, will say "Aye."

Strong differences remained today as to the method of paying. The rules committee was called in to meet to ratify the procedure under which the house would be allowed to choose between the Patman bill, which provides for new currency, and the Vinson-American Legion bill which leaves the method of raising the money to the government. In the procedure was involved a double chance for votes on the Tydings-Cochran "compromise" bill, which would give the ex-soldiers negotiable bonds instead of cash for their certificates.

As the program shaped up, it was this:

Proposed Program
Tomorrow, the Vinson-American Legion bill will be called up on the floor. It, and other bonus proposals, will be debated for 10 hours—perhaps three days.

Then it will be in order for all bonus bills to be offered as substitutes for the Vinson plan. Among these are the Patman and the Tydings-Cochran measures, as well as other proposals to limit payment to the needy and to pay in installments.

If the Patman bill is rejected on the first vote, supporters of that measure subsequently will be allowed to move to send the whole thing back to the ways and means committee with instructions to approve the Patman bill and report it back immediately. If the Patman bill is accepted, a similar motion will be allowed on the Vinson bill.

One Will be Voted
Leaders conceded there was little doubt that one of these two bills would be approved. But they were offering another opportunity for a vote on the Tydings-Cochran bill.

That, too, would be in the form of a motion to send all bills back to the ways and means committee with instructions that it report back immediately, and with its approval, the Tydings-Cochran bill.

Under this bill, a veteran who cashed in now on the negotiable bonds would get 79.8 per cent of the face value of his bonus certificate. If he held off until 1945, he would get 100 per cent.

Mrs. S. M. Maakestad
of Lee Called to Rest

Mrs. S. H. Maakestad of Lee passed away Thursday night at her home after an illness of five weeks duration. She leaves to mourn her passing her husband, E. H. Maakestad, who served several terms as a member of the board of review in Dixon and is quite well known here. One daughter, Mrs. J. O. Prestgaard and two sons, Jacob and Melvin, all of Lee also survive.

Mr. and Mrs. Maakestad were active in conducting a large general store at Lee for a number of years, but retired from a civic life about five years ago. Funeral services will be conducted from the late residence at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon and at 2 o'clock from the church, with interment in the Lee cemetery.

Seek New Contracts in Bituminous Coal Field

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—Twenty-eight mine union representatives and an equal number of soft coal operators started bargaining today on terms of new wage and hour contracts that will affect nearly half a million miners.

The committee has less than two weeks to complete its work. Present contracts between the United Mine Workers of America and the operators expire at midnight, Mar. 31, and John L. Lewis, mine union president, says he will call a nation-wide strike April 1 unless the new contracts are in effect that day.

FORMER GERMAN CROWN PRINCE IS BACKING HITLER

Rejoices in Restoration of Compulsory Military School

(By Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm of Germany.)

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press.)

Berlin, March 18.—You (The Associated Press) have asked me to make a statement concerning the most recent government declaration which Der Fuehrer and Chancellor (Hitler) issued concerning the re-introduction of the general obligation for military service.

I can only say that I know myself to be at one with the entire German people in the proud joy that by this declaration of our Fuehrer and Chancellor, Adolf Hitler, the honor and independence of our fatherland has been recovered.

Out of the mouth of our Fuehrer and from the different utterances by the leading men in the government, all foreign countries know that nothing is farther from Germany's thoughts than warlike intentions, that on the contrary the Third Reich unconditionally needs peace for the completion of its great cultural and economic questions.

Fuehrer Simple Soldier

Our Fuehrer, who, as a simple soldier, always fought in the front line during the war, and who, like all our veteran soldiers knows what a faithless misery accrues to every people through the loss of human life, will do everything to prevent another catastrophe such as the last World War was.

In consequence of the rearrangements of relative power which took place during recent years on our old planet—the development of the Soviet Union, the great changes ensuing in East Asia of such nature that nobody can fully envisage their final consequences—as well as on account of the difficulty which all colonial powers experience because of the efforts at self-determination of their colonial populations, all responsible European governments must, in my estimation, more and more come around to the viewpoint that old Europe simply cannot afford another war but that on the contrary, its future depends solely upon the closest cooperation of all its nations and the defense of European cultural achievements.

Soldiers Understand

What we old soldiers especially rejoice at is the re-introduction of the general obligation for military service and I believe there can really be no genuine soldier anywhere in the entire world who, if he is honest, will not understand this viewpoint.

For our underlying thought is that the great school for training of youth, which the Prussian-German army had been for our people for centuries, is again being set in motion.

Only he who experienced the period after the revolution of 1918 here in Germany, can grasp that many extremely vexatious manifestations among a certain portion of our youth can be explained only on the grounds that these young people, until now, had to do without the strict and severe but just schooling of the army.

My great wish is that your American compatriots, who so frequently evidenced a most comprehensive understanding of our German fatherland may, with reference to the question, also judge us fairly and justly.

Hope to Avoid Protest
It was understood that the cabinet was hopeful of being able to avert a drastic formal protest, hoping that inquiries to Germany from the powers separately for a statement of Germany's intentions would clarify the atmosphere sufficiently to lead to a new basis for the discussion of a European peace system.

Informal inquiries already are under way through the diplomatic representatives to Berlin but so far, a high source stated, none of the countries has received any indication of any sort from Hitler himself.

After the cabinet adjourned, Simon and Eden remained with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, to frame the government's statement to be made later in the House of Commons.

It was stated emphatically that none of the powers had yet taken (Continued on Page 2)

World Watches Helplessly While Ger- many Goes Ahead With Armament Plan: Britain Sends Note: Uncle Sam Silent

London Considering Conference of All of Former Allies

BULLETIN.
Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press.

Berlin, March 18.—(AP)—Konstantin von Neurath, Germany's foreign minister, told Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador, tonight, in answer to a British note, that the Germans were ready to discuss armaments with the British as originally planned.

Sir Eric had presented the foreign minister with a note in which Great Britain protested to Germany against the Reich's decision to reform a conscript army and asking if Germany intended to carry out the proposed conference here with Sir John Simon's British foreign secretary.

The British ambassador talked to Von Neurath fifteen minutes and at that time, presented the British note.

London, March 18.—(AP)—Great Britain called on Reichsfuehrer Hitler in a note today to explain, authoritative sources said, the meaning and extent of Germany's conscription move and to state the Reich's future policy toward the proposed European security system.

Even as Europe speculated over the contents of the note, not immediately divulged, a war office official asked the House of Commons to look after the defense preparedness of England's shores.

Sir John Simon, foreign minister, told the house of the British note and said it would be presented to the German government by Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador.

He stated that the decision to send the note was taken after consultations with Italy and France.

May Consult Signatories
In reply to a question by George Lansbury, Labor party leader, the foreign secretary said the British government was considering consulting with the United States and other signatories of the Versailles treaty and also considering asking the assembly of the League of Nations to deal with the situation.

Sir John was preceded on the floor by Capt. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, who declared Great Britain had not given France a promise to join her in the proposed aviation defense pact in the event the general European peace scheme falls through.

Joined by Reichsfuehrer Hitler's announcement of a conscript German army, the British cabinet met today, and when the session ended at noon, it was learned authoritatively that a formal joint protest to Berlin by a group of Versailles treaty signatories was being considered.

The protest would include Italy, France and Great Britain. It was understood that the cabinet was hopeful of being able to avert a drastic formal protest, hoping that inquiries to Germany from the powers separately for a statement of Germany's intentions would clarify the atmosphere sufficiently to lead to a new basis for the discussion of a European peace system.

Informal inquiries already are under way through the diplomatic representatives to Berlin but so far, a high source stated, none of the countries has received any indication of any sort from Hitler himself.

Sec. of State Hull Confers with Spec- ial Observer

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—Shortly after Chairman Pittman, of the senate foreign relations committee had described Germany's strength as "very serious," Secretary Hull today called Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's European observer, into consultation.

Davis was expected to go to the White House later in the day to discuss with the president the general European situation and especially Germany's defiance of the military clauses of the Versailles treaty.

Davis, who represented the United States at recent disarmament conferences at Geneva and in the London naval discussions, arrived this morning from New York and went immediately to the State Department.

Comment Withheld
After a lengthy conference with Secretary Hull he began a series of consultations with State Department specialists, including J. Pierrepoint Moffat, chief of the western European division.

He declined, however, to make any comment.

Chairman Pittman, commenting on the Hitler government's decision to increase its armed forces to approximately half a million men, said the United States should not become involved "in the threatening situation in Europe."

Secretary Hull, declining to make any comment at his press conference, said the State Department was keeping in close touch with developments.

The American attitude was described as one of "watchful waiting" on the sidelines.

Discreetly Silent
Hull, Davis and other state department officials were keenly interested in press dispatches from London reporting that Great Britain, after consulting with Italy and France, had dispatched a note on the subject to Berlin. That and Sir John Simon's statement that Great Britain might seek consultations with the United States were received here however, in discreet silence.

Commenting on the decision of the Hitler government to increase its armed forces to an estimated 500,000 men, Pittman described it as "the inevitable result of the total failure of the warring countries after the war to get together and adopt some new defense system other than military alliances."

League Impossible
"Whether in this age such cooperation is possible, or not," he continued, "only experience would have demonstrated."

"The League of Nations might have been the medium through which the present situation in Europe might have been deferred many years."

"It seems clear to me, however, that when the allies refused to admit the conquered countries and Russia to become part of the league, and the United States refused to participate, that the league could not perform the functions of such mediary."

Advertising Better
Publication States

Chicago, March 18.—(AP)—Newspaper advertising increased 4.9 per cent in February, the publication Advertising Age reported today on the basis of an analysis of publications in 81 cities. The volume of advertising printed by those newspapers totaled 124,601,000 lines.

An upward trend in retail advertising was disclosed. Department store and other retail lines purchased 6,600,000 more lines of advertising than in the corresponding period of last year. Retail advertising for 1935 totaled 72,104,000 lines, an increase of 9 per cent over February, 1934.

Some question exists as to the destiny of the storm troop and Schutz Staffel (picked Nazis guards) veterans organizations with the inauguration of compulsory military training.

Although many Nazis think the storm troops now are outmoded, some hold the view the Schutz Staffel should be developed into an internal army for police duty in war and that maintenance of the veterans organizations should be encouraged as a preparedness asset.

Feature Demonstrations
Newspapers, meanwhile, gave nearly all their space to accounts of the demonstrations which greeted the rearmament announcement and the foreign reactions.

The carefully expurgated dispatches from foreign capitals gave a uniform impression that elsewhere in Europe Germany is regarded as having finally loosened the Versailles shackles.

The official foreign office comment was that Saturday's decree is "a healthy development which will overcome the unwise and dangerous situation of which Europe has been sick for 15 years, one also which forms the natural point of departure for coming discussions and one which must be regarded in the light of realities."

Wilhelmstrasse circles frequently expressed the view that France and Russia were likely to conclude a military alliance to offset Germany's rearmament moves.

Germany Plunges In- to Re-armament With Pent-Up Energy

Berlin, March 18.—(AP)—Authoritative sources said today that the conscription of soldiers for a new German army modeled on the old imperial war machine will begin at once, following Reichsfuehrer Hitler's announcement Saturday that the Reich again will have a draft army.

Conscripted military service is regarded as already in existence. The nation plunged into the rearmament free-for-all today with all the energy pent up during the 15 years she has been fettered by the military clauses of the Versailles treaty.

The Reichswehr ministry hummed with activity as officers leaped to the task of coordinating the Hitlerite military units, planning a recruiting campaign, constructing an officers' corps and arranging for supplies.

Chief of Staff Busy
General Werner von Fritsch, the army chief of staff, whose responsibilities have been greatly increased by the developments, began a tour of the sixth army corps area for an inspection of housing and other facilities.

It was learned in well-informed quarters that the task of rounding up the man power for the Reich's new army is expected to proceed without delay, as the compulsory military training decree is regarded as being already in force.

Details probably will be announced in the official Reichsanzeiger this week calling the military class of 1914—those entering their 21st year—to the colors for a year's training.

To the average German this is the most important aspect of the Reich's break with the Versailles treaty.

Many Will Lose Jobs
For many German youths it will mean giving up their jobs, to others it may bring release from irksome unemployment relief schemes, such as the labor camps, unless it is decided to send all youths to such camps for a year before enrolling them in the Reichswehr.

Diplomatic and political circles expressed confidence the invitation to Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to discuss European peace problems with Reichsfuehrer Hitler next Sunday still stands.

Some authoritative circles profess to believe that at that time Germany will place her military cards on the table, outlining her recruiting and air force plans and assuring the world of her peaceful intentions.

May Demand Colonies
She may also, these quarters say, offer to enter into a general European arms limitation pact or return to the League of Nations on certain conditions including possibly recognition of her right to equality of armaments and return of her colonies taken away by the treaty of Versailles.

Technical aspects of the rearmament program soon to be considered by the Reichswehr ministry include the construction of submarines, aerial bombers and naval craft forbidden by the Versailles treaty.

Some question exists as to the destiny of the storm troop and Schutz Staffel (picked Nazis guards) veterans organizations with the inauguration of compulsory military training.

Although many Nazis think the storm troops now are outmoded, some hold the view the Schutz Staffel should be developed into an internal army for police duty in war and that maintenance of the veterans organizations should be encouraged as a preparedness asset.

Dancing was the main diversion of the evening, being interspersed with several other entertainment features which provided an interesting program for those who attended and made the event a success.

SALE DREW CROWD
The 160 acre farm known as the Edward Fisher estate in South Dixon township brought the largest crowd of buyers together of any land sale held in a long time. Auctioneer George Fruin is due much credit for this as he used special advertising in this sale and his experience in this line surely proved beyond doubt he knows his business as an auctioneer. The price received was the highest of any sold in a long time. The farm brought $91.50 acre and was bought by William Schuler of Dixon.

SEEDS FOR CLIENTS
Seeds, fertilizer and insecticide is to be furnished to relief clients of Lee county this spring, provided that a sufficient number make application for garden relief. The announcement was made at the county relief headquarters today and relief clients were urged to lose no time in filing their applications for garden supplies.

The only requirement is that the clients have a suitable garden plot available for planting when the seeds and other supplies are received. Not only will seed suitable for planting and cultivation in this locality be furnished by fertilizer and insecticide will also be distributed to those taking advantage of the garden relief plan.

FERA CLAMPING DOWN TO MAKE STATES DIG UP

Demands Eighteen Commonwealths Contribute More To Relief

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—Federal emergency relief officials are bearing down on state legislatures to put up a bigger share of the relief costs which in two years have cost the federal, state and local governments $2,272,102,631.

One argument they use is that in addition to taking part of the load off the Uncle Sam, the money would result in more adequate relief benefits. They said average monthly payments would be stepped up.

Also, the federal government might save $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 a month or about $200,000,000 a year. Already the states, responding to the pressure from Washington, have increased their monthly contributions from a total of $30,000,000 monthly to $50,000,000.

Call Sent 18 States
In December, 1934, the average monthly benefits to families on relief rolls was $28.37. Swinging into the severe winter months, FERA officials on January 15 sent a call to 18 states to shoulder more of the burden.

This action was based on a study begun last July to determine whether states could chip in more money. There were arguments over FERA's right to ask, say, $4,000,000 more a month from them when only $1,000,000 was requested from some other states.

However, officials said, these disagreements were in many cases quickly cleared up through conferences and the states provided for increased state expenditures with some exceptions.

In 1933 the federal government spent $480,601,873 for relief purposes—60.6 per cent of the total paid out by federal, state and local governments. This was increased to $1,069,333,772 in 1934, or 72.3 per cent.

Seeks Revamping
Through the $4,880,000,000 work relief measure, President Roosevelt hopes to revamp the entire relief system. His plans as officially outlined are to take 3,500,000 able-bodied men and women off the present relief system and put them on works projects. The "unemployables"—the physically and mentally unfit, widows, etc.—would be returned to the care of the states.

The administration had indicated a hope that this work program would start July 1, but the senate fight over the bill has delayed matters and it may be long after July 1 before machinery is in full motion.

The original 18 states asked to put up more money were Arkansas, Washington, Wyoming, Mississippi, Alabama, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Oregon and Utah. Later a similar request was made of Ohio.

The increases asked ranged from $250,000 monthly in the case of some of the smaller states to $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 for some of the more prosperous industrial ones. FERA officials declined to specify the sums demanded from each.

SOCIETY

Happy Meeting for Truthseekers Class

The Truth Seekers of Bethel church held their March business meeting Thursday evening in the church basement, which was prettily decorated in green and white for the occasion. Miss Elsa Lengfelder opened the devotions with prayer. This was followed by songs, and reading of the Thirty-third Psalm, a hymn and then Miss Lengfelder read a poem entitled, "Disappointment—His Appointment."

The business session opened with prayer, followed by the minutes and treasurer's report, and the different committee reports. Roll call was answered by twenty-eight members, each naming her favorite hymn. Two new members were welcomed to the class. The business session closed by repeating John 3:16.

The hostesses, Miss Lengfelder, Mrs. Bothe and Mrs. Procter, served delicious refreshments, the color scheme being green and white. This was followed by a musical program by some of the members of the class.

Vocal duet, "The Eastern Gate," Mrs. F. Cheney, Mrs. F. Thompson.

Vocal duet, "How Can I Be Lonely," Mrs. Wm. Foster.

Mrs. R. Weyant.

Musical comb trio, "When The Roll Is Called Up Yonder," Mrs. C. Hess, Mrs. J. Nelson, Miss L. Beckingham.

Piano duet, "Darling, I Am Growing Old," Mrs. R. Weyant, Mrs. T. Gaul.

Hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," Mrs. F. Cheney, Mrs. F. Thompson.

Twentieth Century Club Meeting

The Twentieth Century Club met Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Sterling Stackhouse.

Mrs. Robert Hall gave a very interesting book review, "The Black," by Edgar Wallace.

Mrs. August Wimpelberg gave a book review, "The Good Earth," by Gladys Hasty Carroll.

Mrs. Chester Sargent gave an interesting account of the life of Edgar Wallace and Mrs. Dale Cooper gave an interesting paper on the life of Gladys Hasty Carroll.

At a late hour the hostess served delicious refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gynn Are Surprised

Two of the dearest old people in the little village of Woonung were happily surprised on Thursday, March 14th when a number of relatives and friends came to help them celebrate their birthdays.

Mrs. George Gynn's birthday was Saturday, March 16. Mr. Gynn's comes on Wednesday, March 20th, but the children who planned the party considered it best to celebrate both birthdays together on Thursday.

It was a case of the surprisers being surprised for when the guests arrived they found the doors locked and no one was home. One of the daughters, however, found a way to enter and when Mother Gynn came flying in, having noticed from a neighbor's window, the cars parked in front of her home, she found the kitchen in charge of a dozen busy women, who soon had the kettle boiling and preparations for dinner under way.

Mr. Gynn soon put in an appearance and the first flurry of excitement over, the host and hostess welcomed their guests in their usual cordial fashion.

The picnic dinner, delicious and substantial, was served at 12. A large angel food cake with the words "Happy Birthday" adorned the center of the table. The blessing was asked by Mr. Gynn and the birthday song sung for the honored couple.

Dinner over and the dishes washed, next in order came the presentation of the gifts by Mrs.

John Selgestad, who as she untied each package and the read the accompanying message, added a few kindly words of her own.

Mr. and Mrs. Gynn were very much touched and expressed with real feeling their appreciation of all these tokens of love and esteem.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in conversation and in singing hymns and favorite songs. There were 19 guests present, relatives and members of the Birthday club, the only gentleman was Mr. Ham Risner of Dixon, brother of Mrs. Gynn.

Before saying good-bye the guests expressed their enjoyment of the occasion and wished their host and hostess many happy returns of the day, hoping that they might all meet again next year and enjoy another celebration.

MRS. CRAGG KNOWS GIRL AN APRIL JOURNAL COVER—

Mrs. G. P. Powell during the last few days received a letter from her daughter, Mrs. Wayne Craggs, of Knightstown, Ind., the former Alice Powell, in which she mentions that the girl on the cover of the April Ladies Home Journal is a Knightstown girl, Miss Betty Morgan. Miss Morgan who is now working in New York is a good friend of Mrs. Craggs and visits her every summer. Mr. and Mrs. Craggs had also been to Indianapolis to hear Ray Middleton and had a nice visit with him. He is a nephew of the Arthur Middleton, now deceased, who was a Metropolitan opera singer and at one gave a concert at the Methodist church in this city. Ray also sang here once with the Glee Club of the University of Illinois. He has a wonderful voice and is making good use of it. He told the Craggs that he now has a movie contract and is going to Hollywood.

YOU "SEE STARS" IN THESE CHIC GOWNS—

Paris (AP)—Smart women can "thank their lucky stars" for some of their chic this spring. Schiaparelli has launched a new crepe stamped in black with the pattern of the great bear constellation and used it to design what she calls "flicky dresses." Other designers are showing blouses of white madras stamped in black stars, others use mother of pearl stars as buttons on dark frocks and still others show straw belts splashed with little gold moons and stars.

MR. AND MRS. BENDER RETURN FROM FLORIDA—

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bender have returned home after spending three months in Florida. They report more tourists in Florida this winter than in the previous ten years they have been there. The state as a whole is progressing rapidly along all lines, many people from the north making their permanent homes there.

Investigation of Ohio relief conditions is yet to be told.

Favor Investigation

Members of the legislature hastened back to the Capital after a week end recess and Lieut. Gov. Harold G. Mosier and J. Freer Bittinger, speaker of the house, said they would favor the assembly ordering an investigation. Both are Democrats.

The threat of impeachment action came from Senator Robert A. Pollock, Canton Republican. "There should be a sweeping investigation of Hopkin's charges," he said, "and if the charges are supported, an impeachment should be started in the house."

FRANCE SEEKS UNION

Paris, March 18.—(AP)—France today sought a "union of peaceful peoples" as a war dike around rearmend Germany.

The British view was regarded authoritatively as what would determine whether the old allies would protest jointly against Reichsfuehrer Hitler's scrapping of the peace treaty. But government officials said it was inevitable that "an alignment if not an alliance" of Great Britain, France, Italy, and possibly others would be sought for a defensive working agreement.

A solemn pledge among the three powers that they fight together in the event of a new European war was proposed in French military circles as perhaps "the most efficacious guarantee of peace."

Contestants Must Enter Soon to Try for Jamboree Jaunt

Registration of contestants for the right to attend the International Jamboree in August, as representatives of their troops, will close Monday, April 1. Harold G. Boltz, Lee-Ogle county field executive said this morning. Any registrations arriving at Scout headquarters after April 1 will not be considered.

The results of the contest will not be known until July 1. To win the trip to Washington, D. C., each troop contestant must attend one hundred per cent, Scout meetings of his Troop. He must advance to a First Class Scout rating by July 1, if he has not already attained it, and he must win at least five merit badges. The contestant must participate in one hike each month and train and recruit a new boy for his Troop. He must have also attained a year of service in his Troop by July 1.

CROSSING FATALITY.

Herrin, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—One person was dead and three others under treatment in a hospital here today after the car in which they were riding struck a freight train seven miles south of Marion yesterday.

R. L. Wilhelm's new billiard hall and refreshment place, 111 Hennepin Ave., has been named the "Past Time Inn." An attractively painted sign decorates the window.

NOT ARRIVING.

By Joseph Fort Newton.

My friend lived in a fine old house, set in a garden that sloped down to the banks of a running stream. From the windows one caught a far off glint of the tumbling sea.

The room in which he sat was almost perfect, a blend of comfort and grace, artistic but not ornate; gracious, quiet. It was just the setting for an elderly man who had achieved.

From lowly beginning he had worked his way up, fighting circumstances, and had reached his present altitude. Contentment, one felt, was the word to fit his life as a glove fits a hand.

But no. As I entered the room he began to toss phrases at me out of an article he had been reading in a magazine. "Listen to this," he said. "It's true, every word of it." He began to quote:

"A good road is the reason for traveling, and only secondly the means. Our trouble is a mania for arriving. It's a bleak and barren country where a good road is the shortest distance between two points."

"What's the matter?" I asked, as he threw the magazine on the table, looking pensive. "What's touched you on the raw? You look piqued, chagrined, unhappy. At war with things, you of all men!"

"Yes," he shrugged. "That's how you all talk. You think because a man achieves, he can sit and twiddle his thumbs forever. I tell you it's the road a man travels more than the goal that counts.

"It's not the getting there," he said with a half laugh, "but the going is the fun of life. Sometimes I'd give all the comforts of today if I had a chance of starting again, and have another go."

"Honestly," he went on, looking far away, "if I could face life as I did once, with a little loose cash in my pocket and the suit I stood up in. My! Those were the days, my boy! They were great!"

After all, I pondered, isn't the getting ready for a thing often more worth while than the thing itself? Isn't just living the best thing of all, not arriving, but going on and still to be and do?

Barbara Hutton to be "Princess" Even After Her Divorce

London, March 18—(AP)—Even though she has decided to cast off her princely husband, Barbara Hutton Maivani still wants to be called "Princess."

Hotel flunkies serving her were under strict orders today to continue to use the title, although she has announced she is going to speed to Reno as fast as she can to make the third "Marrying Maivani" prince a free lance.

Hotel employees have been almost the only persons to have contact with Princess Barbara the last two days, during which the five-and-cent store heiress has remained in seclusion in her suite.

Even her "kid cousin," as she likes to call gangling, pink-cheeked Jimmy Donahue, went off on pursuits of his own late last night, remaining out on a party until the wee hours of this morning.

In announcing her divorce plans, Princess Barbara insisted her prince was not going to get a nickel of the Woolworth fortune, to which she is heiress. She said her husband is entirely satisfied to go back to his job as an attaché of the Georgian legation in Paris.

"It has been mutually agreed," she said, "that there is not going to be any compensation."

She issued a written statement last night in which she explained "Alex and I decided we were no longer suited to one another."

In an earlier interview she appeared a bit uncertain as to the exact reason for their parting, suggesting the grounds for divorce would be "incompatibility," but at the same time denying hers and Alex's interests in life differed.

MR. AND MRS. TURNER HERE FOR WEEK END

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Turner and baby were here from Madison, Wis., for the week end visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Turner and with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Holderman. Mrs. Holderman returned to Madison with her daughter and son-in-law to spend a week with them in Madison.

Fear New Contract Bridge Rules May Take Some 'Kick' Out of Game; Assist Losers

Maximum Penalties Reduced; Peculiar Quirk is Noted

New York, March 18—(AP)—Contract bridge players were wondering today whether the revised game, controlled by rules which go into effect March 31, will have as much kick since evidently it will be less expensive.

In the belief of Charles R. Stevenson, president of the Whist Club of New York, which promulgated the code in cooperation with the Portland Club of London, the Commission Francaise du Bridge de Paris and a committee of representatives of American organizations, the enjoyable qualities of bridge will be increased.

All experts agree that some of the stiffness will be removed from the game, but the extent of removal depends on how prone a player is to overbidding at present.

Cut Maximum Penalty
For instance, under the present code one can be set 20,800 points. It would cost that if you should bid a vulnerable grand slam, be doubled and then redouble and not take a single trick. Under the new code the maximum penalty is 7,600 points. Differences in penalties for the first five undertricks are not so marked.

Undoubted vulnerable undertricks will cost only 100 points each under the new code, a change which will have the effect of increasing competitive vulnerable bidding. As a corollary there must be more doubling of vulnerable contracts.

The new code changes the penalty for doubled not vulnerable sets to 100 for the first trick and 200 for each subsequent trick. The penalty for doubled and vulnerable sets will be 200 for the first trick and 300 for each successive trick.

Quick Calculation
To calculate quickly how many points your opponent is set doubled, take the penalty for the second undertrick, multiply by the number of tricks set and subtract 100. For instance, five down doubled vulnerable. The penalty for the second undertrick is 300. Five times, 300 is 1500. Subtract 100 and you have 1400. To calculate redoubled penalties multiply doubled penalties by two.

The new code changes the no trump count to 40 for the first trick and 30 for each successive trick instead of 30 and 40 alternating.

Grand slam bonuses are reduced to 1,000 not vulnerable and 1,500 vulnerable.

To Protect Losers

Harold S. Vanderbilt, who wrote the code says: "The change was made to protect the pocketbook of the losers." Lots of players liked those big bonuses and shot freely at them.

Under a quirk of the new code it is possible to contract for 14 tricks when there are only 13 in the deck. For instance, if a player should bid seven no trump and the next player should say seven clubs, he can be required to make his bid sufficient, which would involve saying eight of something.

Commentators today gave special praise to simplification of laws governing infractions of the rules, especially abolition of penalties calling for new deals for bids and passes out of turn.

Under the new code a pass out of turn before the first legal bid compels the offender to pass when it is his turn to bid. If one bids out of turn the partner of the offender is barred for the rest of the auction.

If a bid is insufficient the non-offending side can let the insufficient bid stand or require that it be made sufficient. If it is made sufficient with the minimum number of tricks required in the suit originally called the partner of the offender is barred for the rest of the auction.

There is a penalty of 50 points for looking at a quitted trick. If a player looks at his cards during the deal the non-offenders can call for a new deal.

Dummy is given the right to call attention to irregularities by adversaries and to ask the declarer if he knows his rights.

New Books Dixon on Public Library

Francis The First—Hackett — A brilliant and colorfully written book by the author of the widely read Henry the Eighth. In these pages, Francis, the warrior, by no means shines out in all his superficial brilliance. His intrigues, too, are carefully and exhaustively recounted. Diplomatic history is usually dull; this is not the case with Francis the First.

Wild Pastures—Rex Beach — A novel of romance and swift adventure in the sparsely documented cattle districts of modern western Florida. It has the appeal of the west, the charm of a Spanish-American love story and qualities of writing which distinguish it from the everyday crop of popular fiction.

Ships—Van Loon — Anyone who has read Van Loon's Geography will know that this is no conventional story of ships. It is not only the history of navigation from the time of the aborigines of Australia to the modern ocean liner, but it is the story of the way, frequently the inhuman way, in which sailors have lived and been treated during the past seven thousand years. There are more than one hundred fifty of Van Loon's drawings.

Engines—Andranade — The language is clear, the explanation, and diagrams are simple and practical, the plates are many and interesting. Mr. Andranade has not forgotten that he was writing to please boys and girls and has merely tried to be explicit.

Sculpture—Rindge — The author presents her views with a certain hard sense that is rare in books of art—much rarer than erudition. She is not offering propaganda for any cult or movement and she has not been taken in by the catch-penny wares of some of the moderns. More than 300 admirably chosen pictures include the masterpieces of sculpture from prehistoric times to today.

Masks, Mimes, and Miracles—Nicoll—Well documented study of the whole story of the "mimic" drama through the ages. The work is liberally illustrated and has been written with the object, primarily, of making an appeal to the general reader interested in the theatre.

Contemporary American Architects—3 volumes.—Each volume of this series has an explanatory foreword by the editor, some biographical data, and several pages of text, made up of interviews and selections from the architects' writings, which embody some of his theory or describe his contribution to American architecture. The main part of each volume is made up of about 100 pages of photographs of buildings, some of them accompanied by plans and architects' drawings. The architects treated are Elv Jacobs Kahn, Ralph Adams Cram, and Raymond M. Hood.

25 Points of Grammar—Stillman.—The author has put the rudiments of grammar forth in a very concise way, so that they may be grasped by any student.

Book of Zoography—Ditmars.—Here are maps of very continent on which appear pictures of the wild animals of that continent in the locality of their natural home. Here, too, are Doctor Ditmars' authentic descriptions of the animals and their ways. For children 8 and up.

PALMYRA FARM AND HOME COMMUNITY CLUB TO MEET TUESDAY

The Palmyra Farm and Home Community club will meet Tuesday evening at the Sugar Grove church for a picnic supper at 6:45 to be followed by a meeting. A good attendance is desired.

Mischakoff Concert Greatest Musical Event Here in Years

The ticket sale for the Mischakoff concert, Tuesday, Mar. 26, at the Masonic Temple is progressing very satisfactorily and it is expected all seats will be spoken for before the evening of the greatest musical event Dixon has had in years. The various local organizations which will benefit by the appearance of the great violinist—Eastern Star, Troubadettes and high school orchestra, for any of whom tickets can be secured, as well as at Kennedy's music store—are issuing an appeal to music lovers to make the coming event one long to be remembered. Requests for tickets have been received from surrounding communities, and even from Rockford and Freeport.

An outstanding feature of Mischakoff's appearance here will be his rendition of the famous Tchaikowski concerto, which he will perform at the request of Orville Westgor, who is instrumental in getting the maestro here. In the hands of the great master, this number will imprint itself indelibly in the hearts and minds of those who hear. This concerto is the only one that Tchaikowski wrote and it is a work of pure beauty and charm which greatly appeals to all music lovers.

Another feature number of the concert will be the much loved Kreisler "Caprice Biennois" also a special request of Mr. Westgor, who is leaving nothing undone to make the program one of the most outstanding ever presented in Dixon.

In these artists—Mischakoff and Doris Wittich—in a combination of talent and artistic perfection which cannot be surpassed—their interpretative ability is such as to entrance any audience, even one not musically inclined.

Concerning them Mr. Westgor said today: "They appeared before an audience of nearly one thousand at Princeton a few weeks ago and it was nothing short of wonderful how completely the entire audience demanded encore after encore as if loath to leave such a revelation as they had heard that evening. They are still talking about it in Princeton and community and it was that concert that Dixon must hear them."

The engagement of these two entails a great deal of expense and expense of the benefits to be given the three organizations and the limited number of seats available, all seats must be occupied to enable Mr. Westgor to make expenses. He has no desire or expectation of realizing any financial gain for himself, his sole motive being to promote better music in this community and to give the people here an opportunity to hear one of the greatest of concert violinists.

Party Honored Engaged Couple

Mr. and Mrs. George Rosbrook and family moved the first of the month from a farm near Ohio in Bureau county to the Peter Knapp farm in Nelson township on the Rock Island road, west of Dixon. Saturday evening, a large number of friends gathered at the Rosbrook home to spend a most delightful evening. The event honored the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary K. Rosbrook to Glenn Albright, a prosperous young farmer of Ohio, which will occur in the near future. The young couple received many nice presents and the evening proved a most enjoyable one which was terminated with the serving of appetizing refreshments.

Training Schools For Home Bureau

Two training schools are to be held for minor project leaders. One school on Wednesday afternoon, March 20, and the other school on Friday, March 22. On Wednesday afternoon the school will be held in the ladies room of the Elks building in Dixon. The school on Friday will be held at the home of Mrs. Syverud in the Pool apartments, Amboy. Mrs. A. C. Dollmeyer, minor project chairman has charge of the training schools. The meetings will begin at 1:30 o'clock. The subject of the school will be "Invalid Occupations." The leaders should bring a few pieces of colored paper, scissors, and an egg shell if possible.

BUSINESS RUNS AWAY FROM EMPLOYMENT

The man who said that there are lies, dam' lies, and statistics touched a popular chord. Most of us learned to dislike figures while we were studying arithmetic in grade school and never got over it.

Unfortunately, however, about the only way we can gauge the progress of our business recovery is by statistics. Still more unfortunately, the statistics that are now at hand are not entirely comforting.

They show progress, to be sure—but progress of a kind which creates new problems to replace the old ones. John T. Flynn summed it up very concisely in his recent newspaper articles.

Comparing our industrial output today with that of 1929, Mr. Flynn demonstrated that we have traveled 54 per cent of the way back—a pretty fair record, as far as production is concerned.

But in the matter of re-employment, we have covered only 28 per cent of the distance. In wage levels, the gain from the 1932 low point is only 18 per cent. In pay-rolls, we have gained but 21 per cent.

Mr. Flynn draws this inescapable deduction from these figures:

"It is perfectly plain that employers are spending an ever smaller fraction of the cost of producing goods upon their workers."

This does not mean that employers are a mean and conniving set of chiselers. It simply indicates that our recovery efforts are bumping us up against the knottiest problem of the modern age—the dismaying fact that modern industry is progressively able to produce more and more goods with the expenditure of less and less human effort.

In the long run, any society which hopes to find its way back to a condition of peaceful plenty must find some way of answering that challenge.

The Marxist says that there is no answer—that under capitalism it is utterly impossible to have both plenty and profits.

The ordinary American won't accept that statement. But for that very reason his obligation is so much the greater to find out how, under the existing social framework, the puzzle can be solved.

No recovery can be on a sound basis until employment, wage, and payroll levels rise at something approaching the rate of production levels.

HOPE IN ALASKA

One of the unexpected by-products of the depression is going to be a renewed attempt to tap the unused agricultural riches of Alaska. The federal government will finance a "sample migration," transporting 200 families and 400 single men to the Matanuska valley beyond Anchorage, this spring.

The move is admittedly an experiment. The climate of the valley is said to be very like that of the "drouth states" back home, and the colonists are all to come from those states, so that that part of the transition is expected to be easy.

These colonists, will, furthermore, be taken from unproductive land which is to be retired from production; and the soil in the Matanuska valley is said to be fertile enough to provide excellent farms.

This experiment seems to be well worth making. Alaska is potentially a rich, productive land, aside from its gold deposits. It is logical that a serious effort be made to see if its potentialities cannot be realized.

LEVELING WAR AND PEACE

The McSwain bill to eliminate war profits will probably come to a vote during this session of Congress. It would authorize the president to freeze prices at levels as of a date prior to the declaration of war, and in that way—according to its sponsors—would prevent profiteering.

Congressman Frank L. Kloebe of Ohio pointed out the other day that such measure would also make the transition from war to peace less of a strain on the country's economic fabric.

The close of a war, he remarks, has always heretofore brought a period of falling prices, with a resultant depression. Under the McSwain bill, he argues, "the nation will move from peace to war and from war to peace without serious disjointment of the economic structure."

Anything that would cut the traditional post-war crashes would certainly be a step in the right direction.

Poetry or impassioned prose moves us more readily, more deeply, and for a longer space of unflagging enjoyment than any of the other arts.—Dr. Frank Jewett Mather, Jr., director of Princeton's Museum of Historic Art.

One of the things forcing the people to relief rolls as fast as the government can take them off is monopolistic prices which are eating away their reserves.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

According to my experience, it is more difficult to keep wealth when you have it than to accumulate it.—Andrew W. Mellon.

PENALTIES FOR RELIEF FRAUDS
IN DIXON BILLLocal Senator Introduces Measure Abolish Present Commission

Senator G. C. Dixon has introduced into the Illinois senate, bill No. 241 which has gone into second reading under the title of an act relating to relief of persons who are destitute and in necessitous circumstances and to repeal present legislation.

The bill embodies many features and is one of several which have been filed to provide control of relief in Illinois. Senator Dixon's bill, however, provided a heavy penalty which is not contained in other measure that have been proposed. Under this particular section of his bill Senator Dixon has made provision as follows:

"Any person who shall make application to the Board or any member thereof for relief when such relief is not required to maintain such applicant or the dependents of such applicant, or who makes application for a greater amount of relief than is required for such purpose, or who uses funds or property given to or made available to such person for any purpose other than for which they are furnished him, or who does any other fraudulent act in connection with any such application, and any person who faces such funds or property so furnished for the purpose of relief to purchase, or in exchange for, intoxicating liquor or narcotics, or who obtains the possession of funds or property for the relief of any other person and does not give such other person, his or her proper share thereof and any person who makes such application for relief who is offered and refuses to accept employment at the prevailing wage in his community, which such person is physically able to perform, which employment would eliminate the necessity for accepting such relief, or who refuses to submit to a physical examination for the purpose of determining his ability to perform such labor and any person whose duty it is to investigate applications for relief, to recommend relief, to disburse funds or property for relief or maintain records in connection with relief, who does any fraudulent act in connection with his office or employment, or otherwise, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof for each offense, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1000 and be imprisoned for not less than 10 days nor more than six months."

Is Emergency Measure

The purpose of the bill as set forth is intended to repeal the act creating the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, approved February 6, 1932. It sets forth that relief for persons who are destitute and in necessitous circumstances could be more economically and efficiently administered by the officials of the several counties and subdivisions thereof than by the IERC, and because of the degree of unemployment and the necessity for furnishing assistance without delay, making of it an emergency measure which shall be effective upon its passage.

The organization outlined by Senator Dixon's bill provides that a commission consisting of seven members, two of which shall not be residents of the same county and the members of the commission shall receive no salaries, but shall be reimbursed for necessary expenses in connection with the performance of their duties.

The chairman and secretary shall be selected by the commission from their own number and they are subject to removal by the Governor at any time and their vacancies filled by appointment. Members eligible are persons who are well known as having previously refrained from any public participation in any partisan political activities and who have never held any political office by election or appointment.

Employees Limited

Present IERC records will be filed with the county clerks of the various counties of the state where the records will be retained and where disbursements will be made. The commission may employ not in excess of 25 persons at any one time without special written authority of the Governor. Those employees shall be persons who are destitute or on relief rolls.

Professional welfare workers shall not be employed by the board in any county having a population of less than 50,000, the bill provides.

Employees of the board shall have resided in the county for a period of more than one year and they shall receive not more than $75 monthly, except that the county clerk may appoint such number of deputies as may be authorized by the board to be paid a greater amount to be fixed by the board in order to effectually carry on the work. Salaries and per diem office expenses and disbursements shall be paid from the relief fund provided by the appropriation made by the General Assembly.

The board, which is the county organization, is given exclusive authority to direct the disbursement of funds for relief. The state commission is required to allot funds to the several counties equitably and as far as available funds will justify, by the first of each month. These funds are to be deposited with the county treasurer and may be allocated among the townships in such manner as the county board may direct.

The juggler soon grew tired and then exclaimed, "I stop my juggling when my arms start aching. You have seen all that you're going to see."

"I trust the show has pleased you well," Wee Dotty answered. "Sure! 'Twas swell. That's why I am applauding you. You're clever as can be."

The others joined in the applause, and then the juggler smiled because Wee Dotty raced up to the stage and cried, "Hi do some stunts."

"Just watch the Twyns hats whirl round. I only hope they're safe and sound. Of course, lads, I may drop them, 'cause I've only tried this once."

"Oh, no you don't," snapped Scouty. "You must find some other things to do your juggling with. Give me my hat, 'fore the thing is torn."

Then Copy and wee Windy took their hats away. One cried, "Oh, look! We've spoiled poor Duncy's plan, and he is lookin' quite forlorn."

"Aw, don't you care," the giant said. "Just sit right down. We'll go ahead and have some more of our fine show. The strong man will be next."

"He's the strongest man I know. To back me up, he now will show you some sort of a strong act, and 'twill have you all perplexed."

The strong man smiled and made a bow. He then eyed Duncy and said, "Now if you will stand upon my hand, I'll give you a surprise."

"It will not hurt you, lad, at all. I promise that you will not fall. I'll lift you into air, though you're a couple times my size."

Dee Duncy, feeling brave and bold, walked up and did as he was told. The strong man took a deep breath, then raised Duncy shoulder high.

"Where," cried the youngster, "this is fun. I didn't think it could be done." Wee Duncy was so startled that she shouted, "He, oh my!" (Copyright 1935 NEA Service, Inc.)

FORMER DIXON
VETERAN TELLS OF KILLING FOEPenna. Cavalryman Had Close Call With Confederate Officer

The Telegraph is indebted to S. M. Hinds of this city for a copy of the National Tribune, published in Washington, D. C. and devoted to the affairs of veterans of all wars in which the United States has engaged, which contains the following contribution by Dr. Thomas P. Dornblaser, Civil War veteran and for many years pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Dixon. While the Dornblasers resided in Dixon the two elder sons, John and Frank, (both now deceased) answered their country's call for volunteers in the war with Spain; and a younger son, Paul, was killed in action in the World War. Dr. Dornblaser is the author of a very interesting book on the Civil War, "Sabre Strokes in the War." His interesting story in the National Tribune is:

Editor:

In modern warfare it is rather seldom that soldiers get into such close mortal combat that each knows definitely the very man he killed. In my own case, I emptied my cartridge box a number of times in taking the best possible aim at the Johnnies but I did not know whether my shots took effect or not, and if they did, I could not tell which man I hit. This is due largely to the long-ranged weapons.

An incident occurred near Rome, Ga., in the fall of 1864, after the Atlanta campaign. Hood passed around the right flank of Sherman's army to attack our line of communication with Nashville.

Hood's rear guard made a determined stand a few miles northwest of the town of Rome. Their cannon were planted in a cemetery on a hilltop, flanked on right and left by thick woods. The regiment to which I belonged was the 7th Pa. Cav., often called the Sabre Regiment of the Army of the Cumberland. We served during the campaign under Gens. Stanley and Kilpatrick.

Wilder's brigade of mounted infantry deployed on right and left in the fields. The cavalry was formed in column of fours in the road. My battalion was in the advance. As soon as Wilder's brigade engaged the enemy, the cavalry was ordered to charge upon the battery on the hilltop. In galloping up the steep and rocky hill, a number of horses slipped and fell, mine among them.

Under Thousand Hoofs

Though thousands galloped by, I was uninjured. Even the horses will not hurt a man when he is down if they can help it. As soon as possible I remounted and rushed after my command, which had already taken the battery.

I rode into the woods till I came to an open field. About 60 rods distant I saw the enemy's cavalry in line of battle. I fired six shots from my Spencer carbine, leaving only one bullet in the stock of my gun. Just then a Confederate captain rushed from his hiding place in the bushes, leaped over the fence to my right and started to join his comrades in the field. I cried, "Halt!" aiming my gun at him.

He stopped instantly, and dropped his sword and revolver, but when he saw that I was alone, he seized his weapons and leaped to a tree near him, and fired two shots from his revolver at me, but without effect, then he ran to the fence a few rods to my right, and laid his gun between the rails, and took deliberate aim. Realizing that I was in easy mark for him, I quickly dismounted and used my horse as a barricade. I decided to reserve my fire, as the one bullet was my only salvation. He fired two shots under cover of the rails. One bullet struck my horse.

The captain, supposing that I was either wounded or out of ammunition, rushed to the fence directly before me, and was in the act of stepping across when I cried, "Halt!" He raised his revolver but my shot took effect first. He fell back.

Communicated With Family

I ran to him at once and asked if he was badly hurt. He said the bullet touched the corner of the "word belt" and went clear through his body. He had but a short time to live. I asked him why he picked up his weapons again after he had thrown them down.

"You were the only Yankee I saw and I have taken an oath that I'd never surrender to one man," said he. "My idea was to get possession of your horse, and then I could have made my escape."

I asked his forgiveness. He said, "That is not necessary; you simply did your duty as a soldier. It was simply a question as to which of us was to die."

He was a tall, courtly looking officer. His name was Capt. Lawrence, Tuscaloosa, Ala. On that morning he was in command of the 8th Ala. Cav. He gave me his diary and wished me to send it to his wife in Tuscaloosa. I promised to do so. When the General in command heard of the diary, he sent for it, and promised that he would send it to her later. The last I heard from Mrs. Lawrence, she had not received the diary.

Expect 250,000 Farmers to be Placed on Rehabilitation Basis

A total of 250,000 farm families officials said today, have been established on new farms under the rural rehabilitation program of the AAA and Federal relief administration.

J. Phil Campbell, head of the AAA rehabilitation staff which directs the work executed largely by the relief organization, gave the $75,000 figure and said it was only a start.

"Capable farmers who are so inclined are being given a new start in life through the extension of Federal credit to enable them to take up land and buy equipment," he said.

The program, which got off to a late start in 1934, is cutting down the cost of Federal relief by putting these families on a self-sustaining basis, he said.

Campbell, a Georgia farmer, said he expected 250,000 farmers to be working under the rehabilitation plan by the end of 1935, making a material cut in the 600,000 farm families now listed on Federal relief rolls.

Daily Health

The Neurotic Personality: I.

Whoever attempts to define the neurotic personality has a double task on hand, for beside explaining the meaning of neurotic, he must also define personality. The definition of personality differs with different schools of psychology.

However, without prejudice to any school, there are a sufficient number of items upon which there is universal agreement, so that one can formulate a basic definition both of personality and of the neurotic personality.

Personality, then, may be said to include all the heredity of the individual, that is, the bodily and mental dispositions, actual and potential, with which he comes into the world. Personality also comprises race and ancestry, and their contributions to the make-up of the individual. Personality includes the modifications to which the individual and his equipment have been subjected by his experiences and environment. Personality is expressed in, as well as modified by, all the gross and subtle relationships between the individual and his environment.

The glands of internal secretion contribute to the begetting of the personality type, and this is particularly noticeable in those instances where disease of the endocrine (glands of internal secretion) effect radical changes in personality, as for example, in the case of the anxiety, irritability, and "personality instability" witnessed in exophthalmic goiter, a condition in which the thyroid is markedly overactive.

When we, however, speak of personality in the non-technical sense, we have in mind primarily the pattern of behavior. Thus, we say an individual has a free and easy personality, or a crabbed personality.

Protection!

Most of the dangers that beset his pioneer ancestors no longer trouble the farmer. Yet, those hazards that remain—sickness, accident and fire—require the ceaseless vigil of the farm TELEPHONE for complete protection. For the man in the city, help is next door. But on the farm irreparable damage may be done while the farmer goes for assistance. The loss in dollars and cents often is greater than the cost of telephone service for years. Day and night the TELEPHONE guards the health, life and property of the farm community. And it works for small pay. If you are without this protection it would pay you to provide it at once. Call our Business Office, or any telephone employee will gladly help you place your order.

JUNIORS PLAYED WELL IN THEIR YEARLY DRAMA'Tweeldes' Excellently Presented Friday,
Saturday Evenings

When a man is in love the fervor with which he strives for the prize of his choice exceeds all other efforts. At least such a deduction could be construed from the dramatization of a Yankee romance in the antique tea shoppe of a seaside village in New England as performed by the Junior class cast of 'Tweeldes' Friday and Saturday night at the high school gymnasium.

In the three act comedy, written by Booth Tarkington, the young hero, Julian Castlebury, played by Theodore Stansell, became enamored of Winsora Tweedle, characterized by Ruby Grimes. Winsora was jealously guarded from young Castlebury's affections by her crochety old aunt, Mrs. Abergone, characterized excellently by Betty Jane Senneff. Mrs. Abergone was assisted in her efforts to oust Julian from the scene by her brothers, Adam Tweedle, and Ambrose Tweedle, cast by Leslie Marshall and Lynne Jenks. The Tweedles and Mrs. Abergone feared the talk around the village, occasioned by the continual presence of Julian, who was from an aristocratic, influential family, at the tea shoppe where he was obviously smitten with Winsora. Mr. and Mrs. Castlebury played by Robert Stitzel and Jean Bovey were no less concerned about Julian's love affair than were the Tweedles and attempted cooperation with them in breaking it up. The manner whereby they attempted to reconcile differences in family station developed an amusing situation with Robert Evans, Philomena Tweedle, playing a humorous role as policeman and brother to Ambrose and Adam. Mrs. Ricketts acted as the town gossip. Her character was capably portrayed by Mae Louise Elchler.

Hard Working Cast
Julian underwent severe embarrassment and endured scathing ridicule from all his opposition but managed to elicit a proposal to Winsora and to blithe the ancestry of the Tweedles and Castleburys in the presence of the two families. A happy conclusion was reached when the hero took away his fiancée and the Tweedles and Castleburys buried their differences in family station by a toast.

The success of the play was due in a large measure to the hard-working production staff. Sidney Snow and Arthur Klein were business managers. Georgiana Shaw was property manager, and Louis Schumm, stage manager. Other members of the staff were Edward Cooper and Harold McCordle, scene-wrights; Lewis Wilhlm, and Walter Gasser, lightning; make-up, Dramatic club make-up squad; music, Dixon high school orchestra. Miss Bernice Horton directed the play. Miss Dorothy Armington was general production manager. Both are faculty members in the English and Dramatic departments.

PENSIONS WILL BE TAKEN UP BY STATE ASSEMBLY

Insurance Laws Also to be Considered Dur- ing This Week

Springfield, Ill. Mar. 18.—(AP)—With no definite hope for an early agreement on the relief question, the legislature this week will formally turn its attention to such issues as old age pensions and re-education of insurance laws.

In a series of committee hearings on schedule, advance prospects are that the most attention will be given the revision and expansion of the insurance code sponsored by Ernest Palmer, director of insurance.

With indications that strong opposition might arise to some parts of the bill, the senate will hold an open hearing on Wednesday. Both houses will consider the new code March 27.

The first exploration of the field of old age pensions also will be made at a senate committee meeting Tuesday. A half dozen pension bills are on file, but Governor Horner and legislative leaders have indicated that definite action won't be taken until congress leads the way with a federal program.

$30 Monthly Program
Most of the proposed pensions would provide $30 a month for persons of 60 or over, with limitations on the amount of income for those eligible, although the age limit varies from 55 to 67. The money would be raised, under the pending bills, by a $2 poll tax on all persons over 21, by diverting all liquor revenues or by a levy on property.

Relief still holds its status as the biggest and most puzzling problem before the 59th general assembly, with both parties disorganized and no general sentiment on the proposals to take administration of unemployment work from the hands of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission.

Waiting for Hopkins
Administration leaders who have not attempted to push through a relief program, are waiting for Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, to express his opinion in the reorganization bills.

During the delay, which Republicans have attributed to the approaching election at Chicago, both houses have steered clear of the Lewis-Williams bills to raise about $45,000,000 a year by increasing the gas and sales taxes and use part of the money to pay the state's $30-

POET'S CORNER

IT MUST BE MARCH

When days are longer, and the nights
Grow gradually brief,
And changeable are all the sights,
And moving brings relief;
While wild winds whimper round about,
But days sometimes are fair,
No one can ever have a doubt
That March is in the air.

Each little rivulet and rill
Is gurgling delight,
To be set free and roam at will
Beneath the sunshine bright,
Though shrouded skies may yet appear
And bring the blizzard blast,
We know that Spring is very near
And winter cannot last.

The gardens and the fields around
Are all baptized in melting,
When snow is melting o'er the ground
And spring is in the view.
Our spirits and our hopes are high
As Nature nears our door,
The day of summer soon are nigh,
Just as they were before.

It must be March—the month of change,
In every way we know,
The robin's song is in our range,
Yet still there may be snow,
But soon the trees will tint with green,
And brighter be the days,
The world will have a different sheen,
For March wind never stays.

THINKS PINCHOT PUT OVER REAL SHIPBOARD JOKE

When He Told of Being Held Up By Baroness on Floreana Isle

St. Paul, March 18.—(AP)—Former Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania probably succeeded in putting over "one of those shipboard jokes" when he convinced a world tourist that the Baroness Eloisa Bosquet de Wegner Wehrborn, "Queen of the Galapagos Islands" confronted him with a pistol and ordered him away.

This was the personal opinion expressed by Howard Kahn, editor of the St. Paul Daily News, who received a letter from a friend, Miss Marguerite Davis of St. Paul, telling how the Baroness, who disappeared mysteriously with one of her lovers when the body of an unknown was found, still is alive and reigning as queen of Floreana island in the Galapagos.

Alfred Lorenz, whose body was found on another island of the Galapagos, is believed to have died while trying to reach civilization after having been supplanted in the Baroness' affections by Robert Philippson, a man with whom she disappeared.

The letter, dated February 16 and postmarked Papete, Tahiti, told how Miss Davis' party landed on Floreana island, found a deserted house, and then followed a path leading inland.

Pinchot Ahead.

"Mr. Pinchot was quite a way ahead," Miss Davis, well known local tennis player, wrote. "Suddenly he heard a rustling in the brush. 'Stop,' a voice shouted. He felt something on his shoulder. It was a pearl-handled revolver held by the Baroness. She gave him a cold look and said: 'I don't like you—go!' He left."

"Victor Elting of Chicago was behind Pinchot and had quite a conversation with the Baroness. She told him several men had fought for the honor of being her lover, and that the new man always won."

Miss Davis is with a party making a world cruise.

"It's just my personal opinion," commented the editor today, "but I believe that former Governor Pinchot was successful in putting over one of those shipboard jokes. I've made many world cruises myself and, coupled with reading between the lines, I believe it's one of those yarns."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Substance" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 17.

The Golden Text was, "Whatsoever God dwelt, it shall be for ever" (Eccl. 3:14).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase" (Proverbs 3:9).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The objects cognized by the physical senses have not the reality of substance. They are only what mortal belief calls them. That which material sense calls intangible, is found to be substance. What to material sense seems substance, becomes nothingness, as the sense-dream vanishes and reality appears" (p. 311-312).

NORTHWESTERN TO TRIM TIME OF W. COAST TRAIN

A reduction of 8 hours and 50 minutes on the running time of the Pacific Limited between San Francisco and Chicago and 7 hours and 20 minutes in the running time of the same train between Los Angeles and Chicago will be made on April 1 by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway and its connecting lines, R. Thomsen, passenger traffic manager of the road, announced today.

The train, under the new schedule, will make the run from the coast to Chicago in 59 hours and 25 minutes from Los Angeles and San Francisco. It will leave those points at 8:00 A. M. arriving in Chicago at 9:25 P. M. the third day. A connection from Portland will be added to the train at Green River, Wyoming, the Portland-Chicago running time being 59 hours and 10 minutes.

This train, as well as all other major trains of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, will be completely air conditioned this summer.

Westbound, 40 minutes will be cut on the running time of the Pacific Limited to San Francisco, making it a 61 hour and 42 minute train. It will continue to leave Chicago at 10:30 A. M. arriving in San Francisco at 10:12 P. M. instead of 10:52, the third day. No change will be made on the running time of this train between Chicago and Los Angeles and Portland, the time already being faster than the 61 hour 42 minute schedule to San Francisco.

While no change will be made in the running time of the Los Angeles Limited or the San Francisco Overland Limited, the Los Angeles flier will leave Chicago at 9:30 P. M., instead of 9:35 for the westbound trip effective the same date.

The Corn King Limited, crack Chicago and Northwestern Railway train running between Chicago and Omaha-Sioux City, will in preparation for daylight saving time period leave Chicago at 6:10 P. M. instead of 8:50 o'clock effective April 1.

BUILDINGS SETTLE UNEVENLY

A world-famous example of a building settling unevenly because of an unsatisfactory soil foundation is the Leaning Tower of Pisa in Italy. This building started to settle unevenly while it was being built and has continued to settle ever since. That it started to settle while in course of construction some hundreds of years ago is indicated by the fact that efforts were made to correct the slant of the upper floors by building them higher on the sinking side. Even these upper floors on which correction was made are very much off level.

Lawns

THE PRESENCE OF MOSS on your lawn indicates either a sour or impoverished soil. For the first, apply hydrated lime and for the second use a good quality of fertilizer. Practically any soil, however, will be benefited by an application of lime followed a week or two later by fertilizer. Do not apply both close together.

GRASS SEED is fine and light and should not be sown on windy days. Very early in the morning or just before sunset there is generally a little while when there is no wind.

WHERE grading has been done, be sure the ground has fully settled before you make your lawn. It is difficult to get rid of the unevenness after grass has come.

AFTER you have applied Lawn Enricher or Fertilizer to your lawn, go over the lawn with the back of the rake so as to remove it from the leaves and then wet thoroughly so that the fertilizer will get down to the roots.

THE FERTILIZER used has much to do with the color of your grass. A good lawn enricher will give you the rich deep green we all recognize as the proper color.

DO NOT use manure upon your lawn. When fresh it is filled with weed seeds and it takes months and months of attention before it is sufficiently rotted to have destroyed the germination of the weeds and to be of value as a fertilizer.

RAKE your grass before cutting. Crab grass and other weeds lie close to the ground and this makes sure getting cut. With most weeds, the growth is at the ends while with grass it is at the base.

IF YOU have a location where it is difficult to get grass because of excessive shade, plant the Japanese spurge (Pachysandra). It makes an attractive ground cover for such places.

WATER your lawn thoroughly. A good soaking every second or third day is far better than a superficial wetting every day. Light watering encourages surface roots and the grass suffers if there is not adequate moisture to a good depth.

FIRST WEATHER RECORDS

The first weather records in America, so far as known, were kept by Rev. Johann Campanius, who recorded the weather each day in the colony of New Sweden near the present site of Wilmington, Del. for the years 1644 and 1645.

Will you investigate our Accident Insurance Policy. No one can afford to be without it. Evening Telegraph.

LEGION PROGRAM OUTLINED HERE BY DEPT. CHIEF

District School Sunday and Banquet at Night
Great Successes

Representatives of American Legion posts throughout the Thirtieth District, gathered in Dixon Sunday for the annual meeting, which was attended by Commander Paul G. Armstrong, of the Department of Illinois and several of his associate state officers. The school of instruction and business sessions were held at the Legion club rooms in the afternoon and in the evening the Legionnaires, their ladies and a large delegation of citizens, gathered at the Brinton Memorial Masonic Temple, where a banquet was served by the ladies of the White Shrine. There were about 400 in attendance at this event, one of the largest crowds which has been assembled at any previous district meeting.

The feature of the evening program was the address of Department Commander Armstrong, who briefly presented the program of the American Legion organization as a national body and work which is being undertaken by the Illinois department. He sketched the Legion's national program, dwelling on each plank of the platform. He first attacked Communism in the United States and stated that certain un-American activities were being spread through-out the land, in the homes of the wealthy, who might be termed the intelligentsia, into the schools, the colleges and even into the churches.

Clergy Victimized
"Members of the clergy have been victimized by some of the one hundred or two organizations, which have been permitted to direct traffic in these churches. The Legion and its Auxiliary are partly responsible for this condition existing in any community, for it is their duty to be ever watchful and to attend the church services and advise against the pitfalls of Communism. The men and women of every community who are at all interested in the future of our country must realize that these un-American organizations are growing in numbers daily. The American Legion is dedicated to the principals of guarding our country and its principals and to defend the Constitution of the United States."

He then diverted to the program of civic betterment in the national Legion program, and the manner which it has been practiced in many parts of the country. The rendering of relief to distressed and service to sufferers in stricken communities as well as the practicing of citizenship and Americanism among the youth of the country were outstanding points in this section of the platform.

STERLING D. SCHROCK,
County Clerk

March 11-18-25.

strong diverted briefly to discuss a plan which he has launched in the state organization. After a careful study of juvenile delinquency reports in state institutions, he told his listeners:

"Juvenile delinquency is found in every locality in Illinois. It is not a respecter of family or friend, but is a rapidly growing tide. The penal institutions of Illinois are overflowing with these youths and for the remainder of my term of office as Commander of the Illinois Department of the American Legion, I shall undertake to curb this evil in every possible manner, with the help of each post and with the cooperation of State's Attorneys and Judges, to save the youth of Illinois from these penal institutions."

Referring to the legislative section of the national Legion platform, Commander Armstrong first reviewed the condition of the national defense, stating that the United States stood in seventeenth position of the nations of the world in army strength. This, he said, was a dangerous situation, and added that the American Legion was demanding Congress to give the United States an adequate defense, that it insisted on proper training and equipment to its service, and expressed his opinion that this modest program was about to be realized.

Advocates of Peace
"The rest of our program finds us genuine advocates of peace," he added. "We don't want war and are trying to do all in our power to prevent it. God knows that we do not want another war! In our national program we insist on the drafting of both industry and capital as well as man power in the event of war, and this bill has been kicked around in Congress for several years. It, together with all of our proposed legislative program is deserving of the support of the citizens as a body."

He spoke shortly of the section of the program which pertains to the relief of widows and dependent orphans of veterans, then launched into probably the most important, that of the immediate cash payment of adjusted compensation.

"This is not a bonus bill," the Commander stated in way of explanation. "It did not originate in the Legion or any other veteran's organization. The flower of American youth in 1917-18 is becoming wilted and faded, but they are dedicated to the service of God and country. They need your help and want to help you in making possible this unselfish program, which I have briefly outlined. We served without bargaining with anybody and while our government has compensated other branches of business it has failed to consider the service man who stood in the mud in the trenches."

In urging the cooperation of business and professional interests in securing the adoption of the Legion program, Commander Armstrong estimated that between four and five hundred thousand dollars would come into Lee county in adjusted compensation claims.

Dixon Post Growing

At the close of this highly interesting talk, Commander Walter M. Smith, who had presided as toastmaster of the evening, took charge of the program. He announced that the membership of Dixon post, No. 12, which has stood at 140 members and less, had been increased during the past week to 205. All of the Past Commanders were called to the speaker's table where they were decorated with the emblem of their office by Commander Armstrong. The first commander of the post, Dr. Z. W. Moss and the present incumbent in that office were also the recipients of the French salute.

In presenting the Past Commanders buttons to the officers of the post, who all were present, Commander Armstrong charged them of their responsibility and duty to the post as long as they are physically able.

"You Commanders are responsible if the Legion is to be successful. You are now Past Commanders, but you still have that responsibility and should be the hardest workers in this organization. It is your duty and obligation to give your services to this post so long as you shall be physically able. Your obligation has been carried out in Dixon post, No. 12, with great success, and this decoration, intrinsic in value, carries the high regard and respect of those who have served in the past."

All Officers Present

All Past Commanders of Dixon Post, including the present incumbent in that office received the decoration as follows: Dr. Z. W. Moss 1919; Sherwood Dixon, 1920; Lloyd G. Lewis, 1921; T. J. Miller, Jr., 1922; Sherwood Dixon, 1923; J. A. Snyder, 1924; Dr. Willard R. Thompson, 1925; Dudley Friedline, 1926; Walter Fallstrom, 1927; Joe Villiger, 1928; Robert R. Anderson, 1929; Rae E. Arnold, 1930; Carl H. Newman, 1931; Arthur C. Handell, 1932; Clarence Shaver, 1933; Walter Mueller, 1934 and Walter M. Smith, 1935.

Rev. T. L. Walsh of St. Patrick's Catholic church pronounced the invocation just preceding the serving of the fine banquet and during the evening, musical selection were furnished by Miss Lorrain Pritchard, Mrs. Marie Bell and Past Commander Robert R. Anderson, who sang appropriate St. Patrick's day ballads.

The DARK BLOND

CARLETON KENDRAKE

©1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MILICENT GRAVES' employer, GEORGE DRINGOLD, told her he wanted to dictate a confession that for years he has been protecting a murderer. Millicent goes out to dinner. Returning, she discovers someone has taken her purse, substituting one exactly like it. She goes back to the room, on the way meeting a distinguished-looking man of middle age.

No one in the room knows anything about Millicent's purse. She goes back to the office, finds Dringold dead. In panic she rushes from the building, registers at a hotel under an assumed name.

Next day she learns police are searching for her. Again she sees the distinguished-looking man who met the night before. He tells her his name is JARVIS HAPP and that he wants to help her. Happ puts Millicent into a cab, gives the driver an address and then disappears.

Millicent, frightened, orders the driver to stop.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IV

THE cab driver looked back at Millicent.

"Beg pardon, Miss," he said, "but the gentleman said not to go back under any circumstances, and..."

"Go back!" she screamed. "Go back at once! Do you hear me?"

She could find no fault with the speed with which the cab driver set the car back on its course. It seemed that within less than a minute of the time her mysterious escort had opened the door and vanished, the cab had once more pulled up to the curb on the opposite side of the street.

"He got out right over there, Miss," the driver said. "I stopped on this side of the street because I thought you were in a hurry."

She nodded, and, pressing her face to the glass window, surveyed the opposite side of the street.

She found no trace of the man who had given the name of Jarvis C. Happ. But, with a swiftly frightened intake of breath, she recognized a police car parked at the opposite curb.

Millicent tapped on the glass partition in something of a panic.

"All right," she said, "drive on."

"To Mills street?" the driver asked.

"Yes," she said, "the Acme beauty parlor."

The driver nodded and grinned. She thought for a moment that he leered suggestively across the street at the police car.

THE cab shot forward, slid smoothly through the gears, and turned at the corner. Millicent strained her eyes through the back window of the car, looking to see if she was followed.

Too late she realized that the cab driver was fully aware of her anxious scrutiny. His eyes were reflected in the rear view mirror as he watched her with cynical appraisal.

Millicent whirled about and huddled herself in the seat, her eyes fixed rigidly straight ahead. She thought of the money her strange friend had given her. She was holding it clenched tightly in her hand.

Slowly she counted the money. There was $375 in bills of varying denominations.

The cab driver swung the car out of traffic, slowed cautiously and crept in close to the curb.

"The bill," he said, "is all paid, and so's the tip."

Millicent looked up and saw a display window setting forth various transformations. Across the window, in gilt lettering, appeared the words, "Acme Beauty Parlor."

The cab driver jumped back to his position behind the wheel, slammed the cab into low gear, drove hurriedly away. Something in the very nature of his haste made Millicent feel that he was going upon some very definite errand.

"Go back!" Millicent cried to the cab driver. "Go back at once!"

Her knees felt weak as she realized that there was the possibility of officers in that police car, or it might be that he was acting under instructions to rejoin Mr. Happ at some rendezvous which had been arranged in their whispered conversation.

Millicent suddenly realized just how she looked, clutching a roll of currency in her hand. There was a leather goods store three doors down the street. Millicent went to it, purchased a cheap purse, and then went directly to the beauty parlor.

"Miss Hanson," she told a blond woman with searching eyes who greeted her.

"You have an appointment?"

"Yes," Millicent said.

The young woman reached languidly for a leather-bound notebook.

"What was the name?" she asked.

"CURTAINS at the rear of the room parted. A small, slender brunet, with something regal in her bearing, stepped into the room.

"Never mind, Evelyn," she said. "I'm expecting this young woman. Won't you step this way?"

She smiled reassuringly. Millicent followed her through the curtains into a passageway which was lined with booths. Her guide walked the length of this corridor, turned the knob of a door at the end, and stood to one side.

Millicent Graves walked through the door and into a room which was lined with white tile, the very floor being spotlessly white. An operating table occupied the center of the room; a chair of the type used by barbers was at one side.

Miss Hanson closed the door. A spring lock clicked into position.

Millicent said rapidly, "I don't want any treatment, Miss Hanson. I came here because I want you to tell me where I can find the man who made the appointment with you for my work. I think you must know who he is. I've got to find him at once."

The large, dark eyes of the brunet woman surveyed Millicent Graves in calm appraisal.

"Yes," she said slowly, "I can transform your appearance so that your own mother wouldn't know you."

"But that isn't what I want," Millicent said. "I want to get in touch with the man who made the appointment. I must see him at once."

The wide, dark eyes didn't change expression by so much as a flicker. "I think," she said, "that you're not the best judge of exactly what it is you do want, Miss Graves."

Millicent started as she heard the woman so casually use her correct name.

"You know who I am then?" she asked.

"Yes," said Miss Hanson. "Please be seated."

She indicated the chair, and Millicent dropped into it, realizing that she had indeed burnt her fingers; that these people held her completely in their power; that any story she might be able to tell the police would sound so wildly in credulous that it would not be worthy of belief.

MILICENT'S unflinching manner radiated complete composure. She smoothed back Millicent's hair, studied the contour of her face, then brought out a brunet transformation which she carefully fitted to the girl's head, pulled down a "U" arrangement of mirrors which she adjusted about Millicent's head.

"How," she asked, "does that look?"

"I'm more interested in knowing," Millicent said, "exactly what it is that you..."

"Do you," Miss Hanson interrupted, "think that looks all right?"

"Yes," Millicent said.

"Your skin," Miss Hanson remarked, speaking as impersonally as though she had been surveying an inanimate figure, "is too light to go with that hair. The newspapers have described you as a golden blond with light skin and deep blue eyes. We've got to give that skin a stain—one that will take several weeks to wear off."

"Can you do that?" Millicent asked.

"Yes," she said, "but it may be painful. You'll have a desire to rub at your face. If you rub the skin the stain won't be uniform. It will be necessary for me to clamp your hands to the chair. I can assure you it won't be painful. It will be done in just this manner."

She smoothed Millicent's dress back from the wrist, placed her arms parallel along the arm of the chair.

"See," she said, "you'll have to hold them this way."

She pressed a button. There was a click of a spring, steel bands shot out from the underside of the arm, circled Millicent's wrist.

"Now," she said, "it won't be painful."

Panic filled Millicent Graves' eyes. She tried to speak calmly, authoritatively.

"Thank you," she said. "I don't think I care for the treatment. Please liberate my wrists."

Miss Hanson didn't answer immediately. She was standing with her face turned away from the chair, looking toward a door at the other side of the room. There was something expectant in her gaze.

Millicent's eyes followed those of the tall brunet. Suddenly she saw a door open. A white-robed figure entered the room.

Miss Hanson spoke calmly, almost casually. "Everything is in readiness," she said. "You may administer the anesthetic."

The white-robed figure produced a paper cone lined with cotton. The odor of ether became apparent.

Millicent opened her mouth to scream, and the cone was clamped over her mouth and nostrils as she sucked in her breath.

Miss Hanson's hands held Millicent's head. She struggled frantically, kicked and tried to scream once more. Her lungs filled with the anesthetic.

New Baptist Church Troop Ready to Register

PRESS CLUB ITEMS.

Troop 60, Baptist Church.

(Contributed.)

Seven boys attended the registration meeting at the Baptist church basement, Thursday night and knot-tying tests were passed. The next meeting will be held at 7 p. m. next Thursday. Leaders present Thursday night were Virgil Carrier, scoutmaster, and Charles Willier, assistant scoutmaster. Plans for uniforms were discussed and future programs outlined. George Burke was appointed troop press club editor.

Troop 89, Christian Church.

By Kenneth Abbott.

Troop 89 conducted a first aid demonstration, Thursday night for Troop 113, Nelson, at the Nelson school. The Nelson troop is being reorganized. Through the courtesy of Mr. Boltz, the troop was taken to Nelson and Troop 89 hopes Troop 113 will study first aid as one of their latest projects. The troop is proud of the blue ribbon won at the Blackhawk Area First Aid contest at Rockford a fortnight ago. The troop took fifth place in the State Line contest held in Elgin over a week ago.

Troop 76, Lutheran Church.

By George Slothower.

Troop 76 held a meeting at St. Paul's Lutheran church Tuesday, March 11. Ways of raising money to send a boy to the Jamboree at Washington, D. C., were discussed.

It was decided to have a doughnut sale on the last Saturday in April. The troop went on a hike March 16, west of Dixon.

Troop 107, Nachusa.

By Paul Girault.

Troop 107 took part in the housewarming of Troop 114, Ashton, last week. Their part in the program was a dramatization of an actual occurrence in Indian history. Other events of the program were a demonstration of Indian sign-language by Troop 110 of Franklin Grove. Several musical numbers from Troop 114 were given. Last but not least, a Court of Honor was staged.

Troop 67, Evangelical Church.

By Lawrence Palmer.

The Shepherd's class of the Grace Evangelical church, the sponsors of Troop 67 were pleased to have Mr. Boltz at their last monthly meeting, who explained scouting and details of the International Jamboree to them, Friday night the troop met at Scoutmaster Rinehart's home. The next meeting will be Tuesday at the same place when each boy will be assigned a district to sell magazines in. This is one way the troop is raising money to finance their delegate's expenses to the Jamboree. A short hike was taken during the meeting. The aviation display was shown at the home craft exhibition Friday and Saturday night.

Troop 72, Methodist Church.

By Miles Lonergan.

Troop 72 is being instructed by Troop Committeeman Elwin Bunnell in sending and receiving messages in Morse code on a telegraph set. A few of the boys have readily picked it up and soon will be experts. At the last meeting, Scouts Paul Marth and Donald Gehant gave an exhibition of boxing.

Troop 118, Colored Scouts.

By James Swain.

Troop 118 met Wednesday evening at troop headquarters. The meeting was opened by the usual procedure. There were four committeemen present. The troop was given a court of review. There were three parents attending. The patrol meeting will be held at the home of Scoutmaster Swain Tuesday, March 19. A Troop Court of Honor is booked in the near future.

Rockford Cage Champs Play Beiers, Knacks in Return Games Tuesday

Invaders Won First Series Meeting at Rockford

Rockford's city league basketball champions, the C & G Coffee Shoppe team, and the runners-up, W. Shanhouse & Sons, will invade the Dixon high school gymnasium Tuesday night for a pair of return contests with the Beiers Bakery, Dixon crown-winners, and the Knacks Leaders.

The Knacks Leaders will open the evening program at 7:30 P. M. instead of 7:15 P. M. as previously announced because of the inability of the Rockford Shanhouse & Sons team to get here earlier. At 8:30 P. M. the Beiers renew their feud with the C & G. Coffee championship.

"Smoky Joe" Miller, president of the local circuit, reported a large sale of tickets in advance for the inter-city series Tuesday. The local teams, although defeated at Rockford by fairly sizeable scores, are confident of offering a still more stubborn resistance on home territory. Should the locals be fortunate enough to win a third pair of games will be played in Rockford to settle the inter-city title. The Beiers were beaten last Friday 24 to 17 by the Coffee Shoppe team and the Knacks lost to W. Shanhouse & Sons five to 12.

Carlson Available
The Knacks will be strengthened by the availability of "Swede" Carlson for the game. Carlson was unable to make the Rockford trip. He is one of the main spark plugs of the Knacks attack. "Spicy" Cinnamon, although he failed to account for any points against the Shanhouse team, proved a valuable addition to the Knacks in their Rockford invasion. He played center after "Shires" Miller had been escorted from the game charged with four personal fouls.

The championship Beiers line-up will remain substantially the same as usual, with the exception of "Pony" Underwood who in two games has carved himself a niche in the roster. Two weeks ago in the final game of the season against the I. N. U. "Pony" rolled up fifteen points for the Beiers. In the Coffee Shoppe tilt at Rockford, he was held scoreless, but played a nice floor game. His main difficulty seemed to lie in his inexperience with the man-topman defense as played by the independent leagues. On the high school team, "Pony" was more accustomed to the zone defense employed by the Purple and White under Coach L. E. Sharpe.

Champaign, March 18.—(AP)—Rich in tradition and color, the twenty-eighth state high school basketball tournament will open on Thursday morning in the new men's gymnasium of the University of Illinois.

Eight games Thursday will bring every one of the "sweet sixteen" into play. Joliet and Moline doing honors in the opener at ten o'clock. Springfield's much talked of quintet must play Mt. Carmel from the banks of the Wabash in the first round, and it will be of Springfield's height against Mt. Carmel's speed.

Quincy, defending champion, drew Rockford for its first opponent. Marion is the first foe of Thornton Township high school of Harvey, the 1933 champion and 1934 runner-up. One of the big games of the first round is the Galesburg-Pekin fracas which concludes Thursday's play.

Among the favorites who were dropped during sectional games last week were Granite City, West Aurora, Elgin, Millard, Johnston City, Eldorado, and Mt. Vernon.

Only two runners-up survived to the state tourney. They are Marion, which was swamped by Johnston City, 42-15 but was still good enough to win the Carbon-dale section, and Deerfield-Shields of Highland Park.

Lost to New Trier
Deerfield lost to New Trier, 23-21, in the Libertyville district, then met the same team at the Winnetka sectional final and turned the tables by a 36-19 margin.

The only other case of a meeting twice occurred at Galesburg, where the home team beat Knoxville in both the district and sectional finals.

Every surviving team except Marion, Deerfield, Pinckneyville, and Mt. Carmel has played some tournament rival or another this year. Springfield has beaten Quincy and Peoria Central twice each and Champaign once, but lost to Galesburg, which also recorded two victories over Moline and one over Quincy.

Danville boasts decisions over Thornton, Champaign, and Pekin and has the best percentage of victories. Ned Whitesell's Maroons have won 22 games in 23 starts.

Others Look Good

Galesburg nearly matches this with 21 wins in 22 times out. Mt. Carmel has won 22 and lost two, both to Mt. Vernon the runner-up to Pinckneyville in the Salem sectional while Springfield with the most victories, 30, has lost three games.

Quincy's defending champs have 24 wins and six defeats on their record.

Thornton has won 24 and lost four.

No less than half the 16 entrants are former champions, and Rockford has won the title twice—in 1911 and 1919. Galesburg in 1913, Hillsboro in 1914, Springfield in 1917, Marion in 1921. Mt. Carmel in 1927, Thornton in 1933, and Quincy in 1934 are past winners.

For Rockford and Champaign, it will be their seventh state tournament since the site of the games was permanently established here in 1919. Peoria Central and Springfield are making their sixth trips here, and Marion its fifth.

This is the fourth time for Mt. Carmel and Galesburg and the third for Thornton and Moline. Three teams, Joliet, Quincy, and Hillsboro, have been here only once before, while state tournament is something entirely new to Pinckneyville, Deerfield, Danville, and Pekin.

Peterman Has Best Record

Among the coaches, Mark Peterman retained his No. 1 spot by qualifying for the ninth time in 13 years. He will accompany Springfield for the fourth straight year after bringing five Canton teams to the finals.

Salem Herke of Peoria Central has been here enough times to establish a permanent winter address, while Les Moyer of Champaign high is up for the fifth time in eleven seasons. Jack Lipe of Thornton arrived for the third straight year.

Splitting the teams into their conferences, we find the big twelve league of central Illinois with five teams in the finals. The Big Six from the north and the big nine in the northwest have two representatives each. Quincy, defending titlist, is a member of the Tri State conference.

Joliet with 3346 students in its high school is the largest school entered; Pinckneyville with 352 is the smallest.

In point of population Peoria is the biggest city with 105,000; while Pinckneyville is a hamlet of 3,046.

LEGEND

An old Indian legend: When plants and animals were created they were told to stay awake and watch for seven nights. The first night nearly all the animals kept awake. The next night several had dropped to sleep. The third night still more went to sleep. At last on the seventh night, only the owl, the panther and a very few of the animals still were awake. Therefore these have the power to see and move about in the dark. Even the trees went to sleep. Only the cedars, the pine, the spruce, the holly and laurel were awake all seven nights. For that reason they are always green.—The Earth.

THRONGS CROWD PARK TO WATCH BABE AND DEAN

New Pitcher Shines For Harris Nine in Practice

St. Petersburg, Fla.—They're scurrying for tickets already to see the Babe go into action against "Dizzy" Dean.

The meeting comes next Wednesday during the Braves-world's champion Cardinals game, and the advance sale of tickets promises another big crowd at the Tribesmen's waterfront park.

Ruth makes no promises, but "Dizzy" has cautioned the Babe to get plenty of batting practice.

Field Is Too Soft.

Sarasota, Fla.—The condition of the ball field at the Red Sox training camp is the subject of much "beefing."

Manager Joe Cronin says the resurfaced infield is entirely too soft, and is mighty hard on the legs.

A morning "skull" meeting is on today's bill.

Detroit Faces Dodgers.

Lakeland, Fla.—The champion Detroit Tigers, with two exhibition game victories tucked away will take on Casey Stengel's Dodgers at Orlando Tuesday.

Manager Mickey Cochrane has discovered that his freshmen may be good enough to supply the reserve strength he lacked a year ago. Clyde Hatter turned in a good pitching job against the Phillies and Chester Morgan from San Antonio was the batting star of Sunday's 9 to 6 win over the Reds at Tampa.

Birkover, Blanton Called.

San Bernardino, Calif.—Lefty Birkover and Cy Blanton got the call to the mound today as the Pirates got ready for their exhibition game against Hollywood. The Bucs made it two straight over the Los Angeles Angels by winning 7-3 yesterday, with Jack Salverson, Lefty Johnson and Mace Brown doing the hurling.

New Pitcher at Biloxi.

Biloxi, Miss.—Leon Arthur Pettit, diminutive left-hander who spent nine years on the mounds of the minor leagues, appeared today to be headed for "the big time."

So effective has Pettit's work been that Manager Bucky Harris has decided to save him for the Thursday game with Cleveland.

GIANTS BREAK CAMP

Miami Beach, Fla.—The New York Giants broke camp today and headed for the north and what they hope will be another National League pennant.

By and large, Manager Bill Terry is well satisfied with the club at this early stage. The pitching has been good and the batting adequate if not particularly potent. The Giants won six of the ten exhibition games they played here.

BATTLE FOR CATCHERS JOB

St. Petersburg, Fla.—A keen battle is being waged in the Yankees' camp for the third-string catching berth with Joe Glenn and Norman Kies as the combatants. Neither seems likely to displace Bill Dickey or Arndt Jorgens, but according to scout Paul Kritchell, Glenn has the best throwing arm in baseball. He also is the harder hitter, but Kies handles the batters better and has been sent to the minors three times so he can't be formed out again.

DODGERS NOT WORRIED

Orlando, Fla.—For the first time in years the Dodgers seem to have no worries about first base. In the past three seasons, George Kelly, Bud Clancy, Del Bissonette, Joe Judge and Sam Leslie have played first for Brooklyn and all suffered injuries at various times. Now Leslie has the regular job and Johnny McCarthy acts like a capable reserve man, hitting hard and fielding well in two exhibitions so far.

CELEBRATE "MACK DAY"

Fort Myers, Fla.—The Philadelphia Athletics celebrate "Connie Mack Day" in honor of their veteran pilot today by entertaining the revenge-seeking St. Louis Cardinals.

The world's champions are intent on vengeance for the beating the A's administered a few days ago at Bradenton.

During the week end, the A's divided a pair of contests with the Boston Red Sox.

IRON OUT ROUGH SPOTS

Winter Haven, Fla.—With an off day in their spring training exhibition schedule, the Phillies spent today ironing out rough spots in their lineup.

Manager Jimmy Wilson led his charges back here after they suffered week-end defeats at the hands of the Detroit Tigers and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

CONSIDER WINEGARNER

New Orleans.—Manager Walter Johnson of the Cleveland Indians is considering using Ralph Winegarner, young pitcher, as a utility infielder this season.

With Bill Knickerbocker in a hospital, the Indians are left with only one extra infielder, William Kamm. Knickerbocker's place at shortstop will be taken by Roy Hughes.

REDS MEET TORONTO

Tampa, Fla.—The Cincinnati Reds, smarting under a 9 to 6 defeat yesterday at the hands of Detroit, today prepared to meet the Toronto Maple Leafs, in the first of five games to be played during the next two weeks.

Lee Grissom and Keith Frazier, stripping pitchers, will share the mound. Manager Chuck Dressen announced.

CARDS BEATEN 10-2

Fort Myers, Fla.—The national champion St. Louis Cardinals beaten 10 to 2 yesterday by the New York Giants hoped to give a better account of themselves in their exhibition game here today with the Athletics.

Bill Walker, "Cotton" Pippen

and Bud Tinning were the chosen hurlers.

BROWNS TO TEST GIANTS

West Palm Beach, Fla.—The St. Louis Browns will try to accomplish today what the St. Louis Cardinals failed to do yesterday, win an exhibition baseball game from the New York Giants.

The Browns defeated Baltimore of the International League yesterday, 7 to 6.

ENGLISH SHOWS CLASS

Sacramento, Calif.—Woody English, rated as the National League's best all-around utility infielder, is making a stiff bid for a regular job in the Chicago Cubs inner defense.

Since the training siege started, English, heavier and stronger than last season when illness kept him from standing the strain of regular employment, has fielded at top form, along with doing more hitting than most of the regulars.

WHITEHEAD PERFORMS WELL

Pasadena, Calif.—John Whitehead, recruit righthander of Dallas, will be starting games and winning them for the Chicago White Sox by July 4, unless Manager Jim Dykes has been fooled by training season performances.

Whitehead, according to Dykes, has everything except polish. Luke Sewell agrees. Dykes and Sewell also think highly of another pair of youngsters, Joe Vance, from Dallas, and Lee Stine, who spent last season at Milwaukee.

NAMING WALL STREET

Wall Street owes its name to Peter Stuyvesant, who in 1652 as governor of the little Dutch settlement of New Amsterdam ordered a palisade built on the site to protect the town from invasion of the English. The last of the wall was removed in 1699 and both sides of the street were quickly built up.
